Can anyone stay stupid?? A ridiculous petition written by a bunch of people that are renowned for operation of an antiquated mode that is no longer of national importance as they claim it to be. This petition should be removed, no need to waste the FCC's time with this crap. Furthermore, someone should take a beating stick and donate it to the FISTS group, they need a new one to beat their dead horse.

Element 1 should be completely abolished from license testing. There is no further reason for it to be upheld, the only reason why it has been obtained this long was due to the treaty requirement, which was removed at WRC-2003. The FCC should take swift action in removing all forms of CW testing from any license class of Amateur radio license.

Respectfully,
